Grassland encompasses rangeland (including forest rangeland), sown pastures and amenity grassland (turf). It is the largest territorial ecosystem on the earth. Grassland produces various goods such as food, feed, fiber and fuel, provides an array of ecosystem services including weather amelioration, carbon sequestration, biodiversity enhancement, and recreation. However, grassland is facing multiple environmental stresses. To discuss issues affecting the healthy development of grasslands, to promote the sustainable development of grassland ecosystems, and to strengthen the communication and cooperation among people working on grassland science from China, Japan, Korea and surrounding countries, the Eighth China – Japan – Korea Grassland Conference is scheduled to be held from 27th to 29th November, 2022, at Inner Mongolia Agricultural University, Hohhot, Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, China. The conference is sponsored by the Chinese Grassland Society, the Japanese Grassland Society and the Korean Society of Grassland and Forage Science, and organized by Inner Mongolia Agricultural University, M-Grass Ecology and Environment (Group) Ltd. Co. and Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region Grassland Society.

The conference will explore development trends in grassland ecology and the grassland-based agricultural economy in northeast Asia, current issues faced by the grassland industry, and scientific analysis of effective methods and strategies for sustainable development of grassland systems in northeast Asia, to promote technological innovation that meets the sustainable development needs of grassland science and industry.
